This assumes positive $z$ is to the right; the slide makes that negative.

The center of projection is where all the projection lines converge.
Vertex processor can compute or transform coordinates, colors, normal vectors. Rasterizer interpolates all that from the info given at each vertex to find a value at each pixel.